NAZIS ADMIT REDS 50 MILES FROM WARSAW

"Rokossovsky Is Coming" Say Leaflets Dropped On German Troops

LOSSES OF HUNS MOUNT

First Month Of "Win The War" Offensive Costs Enemy 539,480 Men

BULLETIN

LONDON, July 25—German forces in Poland are so "catastrophically disorganized" and retreating at such speed toward Warsaw that Soviet tanks and cavalry are having a hard time keeping up with them, an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Moscow said today.

The pursuing Russians are giving the Nazis no time to blow up bridges or mine roads and the main German forces are not being permitted even to "disengage" themselves.

BULLETIN

LONDON, July 25—Soviet assault forces are relentlessly smashing all German attempts to bar the road to Warsaw, a later dispatch from Moscow said today.

The Germans were said to be throwing out tank screens across the main road to the occupied Polish capital, but to no avail against the onrushing Red Army.

MOSCOW, July 25—Russian forces, thundering across central Poland with electrifying speed, were reported officially only 56 miles from Warsaw today as a result of the capture of the rail junction of Lukow, lying east southeast of the Polish capital on the route to Brest-Litovsk.

German reports said the Russians were within 50 miles of Warsaw and had bypassed Brest-Litovsk and Lwow. ABSIE, the American broadcasting station in Europe, reported Russian airmen flying ahead of ground forces in the direction of Warsaw are dropping leaflets saying: "Rokossovsky is coming!"

Marshal Konstantin K. Rokossovsky's First White Russian Army, captured not only Lukow, but the much larger junction city of Lublin, 88 miles south southeast of Warsaw. Simultaneously, Marshal Ivan S. Konev's first Ukrainian army crossed the San river, a tributary of the Wisla (Vistula), at several points, in a drive aimed at Krakow, Poland's second largest city.

NAZIS ADMIT REDS 50 MILES FROM WARSAW

"Rokosovsky is Coming"
Say Leaflets Dropped
On German Troops

fensive four Russian armies had liquidated 538,480 enemy troops, at least 381,000 of whom were killed. Of 158,480 taken prisoner, 21 were generals.

In addition, the Russians destroyed 631 German planes, 2,735 tanks and self-propelled guns, 8,702 guns of various caliber, 5,695 mortars, 23,071 machine-guns and 57,152 trucks.

Occupation of Lublin was announced in an order of the day by Marshal Joseph Stalin which called for a 224-gun salute of 20 salvos in Moscow last night. Seizure of Lukow was revealed by the Soviet communiqué supplement, which said it was taken by Red Army columns advancing northwest of Cholm (Kholm).

Soviet units that captured Lublin pushed on nearly 10 miles to the west to take Belyzce, after inflicting what the communiqué termed "enormous losses" on the enemy in the fighting for Lublin. One unit alone was reported to have wiped out 1,400 German officers and men and captured more than 600 prisoners.

At least 3,200 Nazis were slain in yesterday's battles, while more than 1,200 were taken prisoner.

Gen. Konev's forces, moving swiftly beyond the outflanking rail junction city of Lwow, third largest in Poland, were credited with taking 1,500 enemy prisoners and captured 40 tanks, 50 guns and 30 armored carriers.

Sever Railway

They captured the town of Jaworow, three district centers of Drohobycz province and severed the railway and highways running westward from Lwow to Przemysl, 50 miles distant. The German garrison at the town of Zolkiew was surrounded and wiped out in a fierce battle in this region.

Northeast of Warsaw, three Soviet columns are converging on the German bastion of Bialystok, northernmost anchor of the crumbling Nazi defense lines in Poland. In one sector, two German infantry regiments, reinforced by 50 tanks of the 19th German tank division, which had just arrived from Holland, according to the Soviet communiqué, counter-attacked the Russian flanks, but were driven back in disorder.

At least 800 Nazis were killed in this futile counter-attack, while 37 tanks were burned or disabled, and the Russians pushed on to gain possession of the town and highway junction of Sokola, northeast of Bialystok. Southeast of Bialystok, another 600 Germans were wiped out as the Russians seized 13 heavy guns, 300 tons of barbed wire and a large ammunition dump.

Free 1,370 Towns

All told, the Red Army liberated more than 1,370 towns and villages yesterday in its uncheckered advance along the 800-mile battlefield stretching from Latvia to Lwow. Gen. Ivan C. Bagramian's army captured 150 localities, including Vabolinkas, 72 miles south of the Latvian capital of Riga.

Smaller gains were chalked up by the second Baltic Army of Gen. Andrei L. Yeremenko and Gen. Ivan Mavlenikov.

All told, 172 German tanks were crippled or destroyed in Monday's fighting, while 36 planes were shot down in aerial combat or by anti-aircraft fire, the communiqué disclosed.

O. K., you guys who write those history books.

Here are some notes for that volume titled World War II.

Look up the papers and see who hacked their way through those "impassable" jungles on Buna and wiped the smiles off those "invincible" Japs who planned to dictate peace in the White House. That's right, brother. The Infantry, U. S.

Ask yourself who crawled through those modern conveniences on Attu — including cold running water and hot flying lead—to fight men they couldn't see—and ratted them out when every other effort failed. Right again, brother. Infantry.

Who faced German 88's at 200 yards at Salerno — and held — under conditions that would make hell look like Sunday at the shore? You hit it. Infantry.

Who shot it out with crack Nazi troops so close they could spit in their eye—and did—at the skirmish of the stone walls on Hill 609—and cracked open the road to Bizerte? Infantry. Doughboys. The guys who spell it with rifles.

Sure. Give the Marines their due. Don't sell the Air Forces short. Don't sink the Navy. All the arms and services count—plenty.

We just ask you to write a few of these things between the lines and in the footnotes because we of the Infantry wrote them in blood.

And, brother, there's plenty more where that came from. We've got other chapters to add—and we write a bold hand. You'll see our footnotes on the beaches of France. You'll find us crossing our t's in the Hills of Bataan. You'll recognize our style in Flanders' fields. We'll make our X with crossed rifles all the way across the world.

And when that last word is written, take a good look at the period after "peace."

It was put there by a bayonet in the hands of a guy named Joe.

Keep your eye on the infantry... the doughboy does it!

GERMAN REVOLUTION

GERMANY never had a real revolution, a sincere, deeply desired, hard-fought-for turn to the left, leaving freedom as its heritage. Germans in general have not cared particularly for freedom. The few attempts, like that of the young men of 1848, came to nothing.

When our colonies, earlier, made their turn, Germany gave little heed. When France, in 1793, had her terror, Germans thought smugly it could not happen there. Germany had no fighting on her soil in the last war. Her civilians remained safe.

Now Germany begins its terror. Is it entering belated days of July?

Perhaps Germany needs war within itself. Perhaps without it the German nation might never be able to know pity or sanity, might never be shocked from its complex of the super race into humility and a decent respect for itself and the opinions of mankind. Will it be able to undergo this healing?

Or is the one element within it no better than the others, and must it go on making trouble in the world until it exhausts itself and everyone else?

ROOSEVELT AND TRUMAN

THE defeat of Henry Wallace and the acceptance of Harry Truman in his stead shows the Democrats moving slightly in a conservative direction. The President, called a pitcher in one figure of speech, a quarterback in another, remains at heart the sailor. He sets a course and holds to it, but he has to tack to catch the wind. Sometimes veering to the left, now a little to the right, he comes back always to the lines on his chart.

Wallace presents a strange figure. He is probably liked, admired and trusted by many more plain people than politicians who pull strings could possibly believe. But perhaps his thinking is as far ahead of his time as Wilson's was in 1918—and that, in a world wedded to facts and business, is a disadvantage. It is too soon to say final farewell to Henry. There are other capacities in which his real values may find more useful fields than the vice-presidency.

Truman is known to most Americans only through his Truman committee, whose conduct has won their respect. His acceptance speech was a model of sense and brevity. His fellow-citizens hope he lives up to that first impression.

Most Frenchmen, according to the old popular notion, wished they lived in Paris. Now probably most of them wish they lived in liberated Cherbourg.

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON

AMERICANS NOT AS ADEPT

WASHINGTON—The uncensored diplomatic pouch from London reports that the proportion of Americans being killed by Hitler's robot bombs is greater than the proportion of British. This is because Americans in London haven't learned to adjust themselves to living in a city where death lurks at every corner.

Since the number of Americans in London is less than the number of British, the total number of Americans killed is naturally less than the number of British killed, but proportionately American lives lost are greater.

What happens is that a Britisher walking down a London street instinctively looks for the nearest lamp-post, pillar, pile of bricks or anything that will serve as protection. He does this before there is any explosion or even any noise of an approaching robot. He has been trained to do it for four long and perilous years during which death was constantly dropping out of the sky, in the same way that a single-engine airplane pilot flying from Washington to New York is constantly on the lookout for emergency landing places such as cow pastures, even when his motor is whirring perfectly.

Because Americans aren't trained in watching for means of protection in the street, they lose that split second's time necessary to get out of the way of flying glass and bricks.

In addition, American troops suffered one unhappy accident when a robot bomb landed in the middle of a detail of men who were getting ready to leave in trucks. Lined up in a London street, they were wiped out.

DESTRUCTION OF THE ROBOT

Authentic London reports are not too encouraging regarding destruction of the robot bomb. Greatest success has been in knocking it out in the air with fighter planes. However, it takes a robot just 3 and 1/2 minutes to cross the Channel, so the fighters have to work with terrific speed. (Total time from the bomb's launching until the time it hits London is estimated at 10 minutes.)

If they knock the bomb down over London, it explodes with just as much damage as if they had let it alone, so there is only one place to go after it—over the Channel.

Once a robot escapes the fighters and passes over London, anti-aircraft fire is stopped and the only thing to do is to let the bomb take its course and explode wherever it hits.

Furthermore, it is not easy to knock down a robot over the Channel. Gunfire must strike its nose in order to explode it. A cannon ball in the body of the robot plane, however, will usually knock it out. Some intrepid fighters have flown up very close—the robot cannot fire back—and tipped up its wing with the wing of the fighter. When the robot's wing is tipped more than 45 degrees, the gyroscope which keeps it in balance fails to function and the robot goes into a dive.

If the fighter is too close when a robot explodes in the air, the repercussion is so great that the fighter sometimes is knocked to pieces.

Bombing the robot launching platforms is also extremely difficult because they are protected with tons of concrete. About the only way to blow them up is to place a bomb squarely in the mouth of

Scenes and Sights Viewed Almost Everyone There Was At Democratic Convention A Candidate for V. P. Post

By HELEN ESSARY

Central Press Columnist

CHICAGO—The political mob scene in this city has been enlarged by one person—a man. The fellow's a delegate to the convention.

Yes, by Andrew Jackson's shiny brass spittoon, he is A DELEGATE.

The other 789,433 and two-thirds people here were vice presidential candidates. It is a sort of joke on somebody—maybe Throbbottom of "Of Thee I Sing"—but it does look as if the vice presidency had come into its own, at last, by way of a fourth term.

This reminds me that I haven't heard Mr. Roosevelt mentioned except indirectly.

But those vice presidential as-pir-ants. They were popping out at you from behind potted palms, from under the olive in the Martini glass. They were always in the middle of the poached egg in the corned beef hash, and behind the lemon that travels with the Lake Michigan whitefish.

They were an adhesive lot those boys. They patted you on the back and paid you compliments about your four-year-old hat. They wanted to know how all the folks were back home. They said that was a swell piece you wrote three weeks ago last Tuesday. They poured smooth, half hidden criticisms of other vice presidential candidates into casual remarks about the weather.

The best V. P. story happens to be a true one. A certain Washington correspondent who continues to believe in Santa Claus came rushing off the sleeper and ran into a southern senator who at the moment was but a southern senator to him and nothing more. Said the S. S.: "I think, my boy, that you ought to know the president is cooling off a little on Henry Wallace. There's a dark horse in the race now. No, my boy, I'm not at liberty to tell you . . . no, sirree, I'm not the kind of a fellow to betray a secret. But I'll tell you this much, he's in the Senate and he's goin' to win by many a furlong. Well, good bye, my boy, good to see you. Give my best to that beautiful wife of yours. By the way, the chief is strong for this fellow."

The Washington correspondent being new to the Democratic convention mood of 1944, went galloping through the better smoke-filled rooms, he buttonholed everybody he met except one bus boy who was busy carrying out a tray of dirty dishes. He asked a thousand questions. Nobody could tell him who the sure and certain dark horse was.

About midnight, not having yet been able to find the missing candidate's identity, he called his morning's friend, the southern senator.

"Say, senator," he said. "I'm terribly sorry to bother you this late, but I swear I can't find out the name of that dark horse you were telling me about. Couldn't you give me just one little tip on this sure-fire vice presidential candidate?"

"Well, my boy," replied the senator as chirpy as a Gavga cricket, "I really don't want to say. But I like to help you newspaper boys whenever I can. The fellow I was talking about is—er—well, to be frank—that man is none other than me."

It made me a little sad to see Jim Farley here. The former national committee chairman and postmaster-general is probably a little sad himself.

Jim would be far more of a personality at this moment if instead of revealing the bitterness he felt over his break with Mr. Roosevelt he had kept on being friends—in public, at least—with his old boss. I doubt if Mr. Farley is really resentful in his jovial Irish soul. Somebody has made him think he ought to be resentful.

But if he'd jump on the wagon now, even as late as it is, people would say, "What a truly big man. He can forget animus." After all, when a man has made politics practically a life work he can't hop off the bandwagon because somebody got mad at him. At least, he can't if he is as smart as Jim Farley.

Many a profound explanation is given for the hold those Rooseveltites have on the "peepul." I have my own explanation cities you are interested in are Leptus americanus and Leptus irritans. To you, they are just plain chiggers.

Chiggers are found pretty much all over the United States, except, perhaps, in the Pacific Coast region. I have never heard of them out there, but they may be. They are found in the Atlantic seaboard states from New York to Georgia, and in those regions there is only one species. In southern and midwestern states, as far north as Minnesota and Wisconsin, another species is found. They may be much more widely distributed than that—I am sticking to the regions where scientific study has identified them.

Their favorite local habitat is in woodlands where there is a considerable growth of underbrush.

Blackberry bushes are their especially favorite haunts. They are not found in cultivated fields or in well kept lawns and parks. Picnicking sites are dandy for them, as we all know only too well.

river banks, around lovely little lakes. Their distribution is patchy, however. Some places which seemed ideal for them have been combed and examined year after year without finding any while close by in another spot with the same woodland characteristics they are found in plentious abundance.

Feeding Habits Unknown

One of the things we don't know about them is what they feed on. The popular belief that they live on berries and fruit juices cannot be substantiated. The idea that they live as parasites on small animals also falls down. Such small animals have been examined repeatedly without finding any chiggers. They have been found attached to the skin of snakes.

The season of their activity is from about July second to the end of September. But they are not so fierce as the summer wears out.

The popular belief that they climb up the body and get on the chest and in the armpits also breaks down under experimental investigation. They get into the ankles and knees, and if you walk waist high through bushes where they live you will get them at the level of contact, but the fellow who got them, the doctor leads me to think there is no treatment.

GIRL GOLFER BLASTS VERY WELL

STARS SAY—

For Tuesday, July 25

A LIVELY and interesting day is read from a conflicting state of dominant planets in which shrewd, sagacious and above board dealings may be needful to set aside baneful, intriguing and undercover situations, difficult to fathom. Credit, standing, reputation and security seem to be in the balance, with direct and aggressive action as the main remedy. With frustration and sinister attack vanquished there is hope of definite success and happiness, affecting the personal as well as business life. Friendship and closer ties may prove of significance.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may have the disposal of their present as well as future happiness and security, to be rescued from sinister and undercover circumstances, largely by a direct and decisive blow at undermining dangers. Beware subtle and intriguing alliances, safeguard finances, reputation, social standing by open and above board policies and tactics. Stick to facts and adhere to the demands of duty, obligation and responsibility, and all should be well, bringing personal happiness as well as increased prestige and popularity.

A child born on this day although subject to subtlety and craft, with temptations and snares, may adhere to the code, with integrity and honor, thereby winning the approbation of its superiors and influential friends, social and business.

In memory of Phillip S. Berry who passed away July 22, 1942. Those we love on, and we are reminded. Of a day our hearts were crushed. When God took you, oh, so suddenly. And all in gloom were thrust. You bid us one last farewell. You said good bye to none. Your loving heart had ceased to beat. For we knew it, you were gone. You did not fail to do your best. Your heart was true and tender. You worked hard for those you left. And will always be remembered. Nannie V. Berry, and children.

KAHNS SLATED FOR CONTEST IN EARLY AUGUST

Big Hit Registered By Aggregation In City On Ted Lewis Day

Plans for a girls' softball game in Ted Lewis park early in August were announced Tuesday by members of the board of park commissioners.

The commissioners are making arrangements to bring here the Kahn team, which made such a hit at the dedication of the park, and another girls' team from Columbus.

Proceeds from the game will go to the fund to build a shelter house at the park. Tickets will be sold all over the city and a house-to-house canvass may be made to assure a large amount for the shelter house project.

Following the meeting of the commissioners Monday night, it was announced several improvements have been made at the park. Another picnic furnace has been installed. Commissioners said the use of the park as a picnic grounds was increasing greatly. A new flower bed has been laid out at the park.

Tentative plans for a tree planting day sometime this Fall also were discussed at the meeting. The commissioners plan to invite all organizations in Circleville to participate. Each club or organization will be invited to secure its own tree and plant it in a place designated by the commissioners.

Definite date for the appearance here of the girls' teams will be announced within the next few days, the commissioners said.

TRAGEDY BLAMED ON OVERLOADING, SPEED BOATS, EXPLAINED AT KIWANIS MEET

An overloaded boat and swell from passing speedboats was blamed Tuesday for the tragedy which claimed the lives of two former Ashville children Sunday at Buckeye Lake.

Dr. G. W. Sapp, Licking county coroner, said that the load of five adults and two children was too heavy for the 12-foot boat already weighed down at the stern by a four-horsepower motor, making it difficult to handle.

Raymond Clark Cline, 5, and Shirley Mae Cline, children of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Cline, 561 Reinhard avenue, Columbus, former Ashville residents, drowned when the boat upset. The father, his brother, John M. Cline, their uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. William Ward, and Mrs. Julia Kulish, all of Columbus, were rescued.

Pickaway County Farmers and Sportsmen association has carried on the preliminary phases of the move to get a lake in the county and Mr. Mebs appealed for the support of all civic organizations in the county to make possible "the most beautiful state-owned lake in the state".

At present only preliminary steps have been taken and no estimate of the cost of the project has been made. Mr. Mebs said the lake probably would cover about 130 acres and average 15 to 20 feet in depth. It is to be built as a memorial to the county's men in service.

Mr. Mebs was introduced by Dwight Steele, program chairman.

Guest at the meeting was Walter Richards. A former member, now in the army, Delos Marcy also was present.

Next week Harold Defenbaugh will be in charge of the program.
